A GUIDE TO BUILDING
YOUR LEGACY

Starting a quadball community in your country is simpler than you might think. With the full backing of the IQA, you'll have access to valuable resources, guidance, and benefits throughout the process. Here's how to get started:

Step 1: Find a Local Enthusiast

Every great journey begins with a single step, and in this case, that step is finding someone in your country who shares your enthusiasm for quadball. This person will be your key partner in starting a quadball community and gathering more supporters.

Step 2: Collaborate with the IQA

Once you have a like-minded individual by your side, reach out to the IQA. The IQA is here to guide you through every stage of the process, providing the resources, knowledge, and expertise you need to establish a thriving quadball community in your country.

Step 3: Building Your Plan

With the IQA's support, you'll put together a comprehensive plan. This plan will include strategies for recruiting players, volunteers, creating teams, managing social media, and building a strong quadball brand. The IQA will equip you with the essential tools and know-how to attract the right people to your quadball community.

Step 4: Gaining IQA's Recognition

As your efforts progress, you'll reach a stage where your quadball community is ready to be recognized by the IQA. There are several stages of recognition:

- Area of Interest: At this initial stage, individuals from your country express their interest in quadball. You're not an IQA member yet but can be listed on the official IQA website and promoted on official IQA social media. Areas of Interest cannot compete with existing IQA members.
- Full Membership: To reach the highest level of recognition, Full Membership, your NGB must fulfill even more criteria, such as representing a recognized country, having a certain number of registered teams, players, and administrative staff, and more. Full Membership provides voting rights in the IQA Assembly of Members and access to the NGB communal forum.
